

Storage Innovators Award

Toshiba Storage Products Division is proud to have won the Storage Innovators Award for the second year running at the 2015 Storage Awards.

This year's awards attracted more than 50,000 votes from readers of Storage Magazine who nominated Toshiba in several categories. The Storage Awards are now in their twelfth year and provide Storage Magazine readers the opportunity to reward outstanding products, people and companies.

"We are delighted and honoured to have been voted Storage Innovator of the Year for the second year in a row," said Martin Larsson, vice president of Toshiba Electronics Europe, Storage Products Division, upon collecting the award in front of the industry's finest who attended the awards ceremony that took place at the prestigious Grand Connaught Rooms in London, UK. "We would like to thank every one of you who voted for us. This award reflects Toshiba's strong commitment and continual investment in research and development to push the boundaries of storage technology to meet customers' needs."

Throughout its history, Toshiba has revolutionized the design and development of storage devices. Today, Toshiba delivers the industry's most comprehensive range of storage technologies and products spanning the enterprise, mobile, and consumer environments for both HDDs and SSDs.
